Tikkun Olam

Ani v'Atah

*Ani v'atah neshaneh et ha'olam
Ani v'atah az yavo'u k'var k'lam
Aninu et zeh kodem, l'fanai
Zeh lo meshaneh
Ani v'atah neshaneh et ha'olam*

You and I will change the world.
You and I, then everyone will join in!
It's been said before, before my time,
But it doesn't matter;
You and I will change the world!

Yad B'yad

*Yad b'yad, echad im ha-sheinu
Am echad in lev echad, ken anu nadlik
Nadlik m'su'at olam, nadlikah k'am echad
Yad b'yad, echad echad, ken anu nadlik*

Im ein kemach ein Torah, im ein Torah ein Kemach.

*It can be you, it can be me,
It can be all the people all over the world.
Lending, caring, sharing hand in hand.*

Hand in hand, one with another
One people with one heart, yes we will light-
We'll light the eternal flame, we'll light it as one nation
Hand in hand, one by one, yes we will light it.

If there is no sustenance, there is no Torah;
Without Torah, there is no sustenance.

The Quotable Tikkun Olam

“Repair the world,’ a mandate that does not stop at the borders of our communities, a mandate that has no borders at all.” - Gary Shreyngart, author

“What do the Jews do? They keep watch. They are the sentinels against intolerance.” - Dr. Bernard Jouchner, former French Minister of Health, founder of Doctors Without Borders

A Parable

One day, a man walking on the road saw Honi the Circle Maker planting a carob tree.
Puzzled, the man asked, “How long will it be before this tree will bear fruit?”

Replied Honi, “Seventy years.”

The man then asked, “And do you believe you will be alive in another seventy years?”

Honi answered, “When I came into this world, there were carob trees with fruit ripe for picking. Just as my parents planted for me, so I will plant for my children.”

-Babylonian Talmud, Ta'anit 23a
